2019-2020 marks the fifth year of the University of South Carolina's Graduate Civic Scholars Program. To date, 55 students from 26 academic programs have participated. This year's Scholars come from four colleges: Arts and Sciences, Social Work, Information and Communications and Public Health.

Samuel Bethel
College of Social Work
PhD Student

Margaret Carson
Environmental Health Sciences
PhD Student

Nicholas James Sokol
Geography
PhD Student

Lynsey M. Keator
Communication Sciences and Disorders
PhD Student

Morgan Lundy
English and Library Information Science
MA and MLIS Student

Nick Vera
Library and Information Science
PhD Student

Archie Crowley
Linguistics
PhD Student

Samuel Bethel
College of Social Work
PhD Student

Margaret Carson
Environmental Health Sciences
PhD Student

Nicholas James Sokol
Geography
PhD Student

Lynsey M. Keator
Communication Sciences and Disorders
PhD Student

Morgan Lundy
English and Library Information Science
MA and MLIS Student

Susan Doherty Osteen
English
MFA Student

Archie Crowley
Linguistics
PhD Student

Samuel Bethel
College of Social Work
PhD Student

Margaret Carson
Environmental Health Sciences
PhD Student

Nicholas James Sokol
Geography
PhD Student

Lynsey M. Keator
Communication Sciences and Disorders
PhD Student

Morgan Lundy
English and Library Information Science
MA and MLIS Student

Susan Doherty Osteen
English
MFA Student

Archie Crowley
Linguistics
PhD Student
ABOUT THE GRADUATE CIVIC SCHOLARS PROGRAM

The GCSP emphasizes the importance of collaboration between university and community partners and cohort-based professional development. Scholars in this interdisciplinary program will present their findings at Discover USC in April 2020 and receive a transcript notation upon completion of the program.

The GCSP, begun in 2015, is organized by the Graduate School in cooperation with the Career Center, Office of the Vice President for Research, Office of Student Engagement, Graduate Student Association, and Center for Teaching Excellence. Professors Lucy Ingram (Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior) and Allison Marsh (History) serve as Co-Directors for 2019-2020.

For more information, contact Dr. Heather Brandt in the Graduate School at hbrandt@sc.edu or 803.777.4243.

The UofSC Graduate School • Close-Hipp Building • Suite 552 • gradschool.sc.edu